This is the Hip-Hop Detoxx!!!

WHO's Involved: Enoch Muhammad, the Chief Facilitator of the Hip-Hop Detoxx and Executive Director of the Task Force Community Network along with various artist from a variety of genres of entertainment.

WHAT: The Hip-Hop Detoxx is a systematic and interactive initiative, which provides follow-up, projects, referrals and programs that have elements of, yet offers more than a concert, a play/musical, an open mic poetry set, or motivational speaking experience.

The Detoxx is an experience that offers seamless synthesis of truth that challenges conventional perceptions and attitudes, woven and intertwined with engaging and penetrating cultural expressions. The Detoxx as a program assists schools, agencies and organizations in their efforts to reduce violence and negative behavior that currently impede progress and ultimately impact our society and our future with overwhelming economic and social challenges.

This approach uses Hip-Hop music and popular culture to facilitate spirituality and humility for the purpose of addressing problems, conflicts, and issues at the root.

WHY: As a society, we all have to examine, analyze and correct our thinking about racism, sexism, gross materialism and other social ills. The Hip-Hop Detoxx is a vehicle that helps to facilitate this process within each individual.

The Hip Hop Detoxx exposes problems within our culture and facilitates the process of helping all to acknowledge the role we play in the problem; no one is exempt. This is a generational issue that has been passed on for many decades. We can all engage in the process of removing the poison because it is detrimental. The problem is not limited to one genre of music, art form or group of people; it is a problem that is embedded within the fabric of our culture.
